Marine Rebuild Specialists

Engines and Parts that Meet or Exceed OEM Specs Every Time

For more than a decade, Marine Rebuild Specialists (MRS) has been providing the marine industry with competitively priced, high-quality remanufactured powerheads, gearcases, outdrives, sterndrive engines and transmissions. Every product is rebuilt to meet or exceed OEM specifications.

"Our mission is to deliver top-notch products at fair prices and in a timely manner, supported by a solid warranty – and to make every effort to satisfy our clients, the dealers and repair shops, so they in turn can satisfy their clients, the boaters," said Carl Blum, president of MRS.

Located in Seminole, Fla., MRS has grown into a multi-million dollar enterprise with a 16,000-square-foot facility that combines the latest technology with a staff of highly trained personnel. "We've grown because we handle each client as though they were our only one, and we will continue to do so, regardless of our size," added Roberta Zradicka, MRS director of sales and customer services. "We know that the dealer is our client, but that their customer, the boater, is ultimately the one who keeps us both in business."

Highest standards

The company's rigid manufacturing standards ensure that it produces consistent, high-quality re-manufactured products. MRS uses only OEM housings for its parts. "There are aftermarket housings available, but we don't believe in them," said Blum. "If the product fails because of slight differences in the design, the boater will pay the price."

MRS maintains an inventory of Mercury, Yamaha, Bombardier, OMC, MerCruiser, Volvo and Honda powerheads and lower units. "MRS is a re-manufacturer, not a rebuilder, meaning that we bring used equipment back to new-equipment specifications," said Blum.

MRS uses only new parts in the re-manufacture process. Each part must meet OEM specifications in order to meet the company's quality standards. "We've built strong relationships with all of the major manufacturers and have access to their resources any time we have an issue or concern that's unusual or out of the ordinary," he said.
